

Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinics

Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinics (CCBHCs) are community clinics that offer integrated mental health and substance use disorder services, as well as a range of other services. These clinics provide outreach, increase access, improve services and serve as a “one-stop-shop” to a wide range of community members, regardless of ability to pay.

About CCBHCs

Navigating mental health and substance use disorder systems can be difficult. Typically, a person with a mental illness will need to contact several different agencies to obtain a different level of care, and rarely can someone obtain both mental health and substance use disorder treatment through the same agency.

CCBHCs improve Minnesotans’ access to treatment through a model of community clinics that provide comprehensive, coordinated and integrated care to children and adults with complex mental health and substance use disorders.

High-level care coordination and partnerships between providers, social services agencies, counties and other key stakeholders increases the likelihood that care is received before a person enters into crisis. This improves outcomes and saves money by diverting care from emergency rooms.

Integrated care

People who use CCBHCs may receive:

- Outpatient mental health and substance use services
- Primary care screening and monitoring
- Screening, assessment and diagnosis, including risk management
- Psychiatric rehabilitation services
- Crisis mental health services, including 24-hour mobile crisis teams, emergency crisis intervention services and crisis stabilization
- Person-centered and family-centered treatment planning
- Targeted case management
- Peer and family support
- Services for veterans and members of the armed forces
- Care coordination with other providers and systems.
